

AEOS training courses

International Security Management Institute

The International Security Management Institute (ISMI) promotes the exchange of knowledge aimed at creating a more secure environment and optimized security processes. ISMI provides security training at all levels: strategic, implementation, use, and technical. Course participants benefit from the experience of professionals and enhance their own skills. The institute offers courses for anyone who uses, implements or sells Nedap's AEOS Enterprise Security Management systems.

Training Method

Classroom Training

Different learning styles, training objectives, locations and budgets require different learning methods. We know from experience that a combination of instructor-led learning and hands-on training tends to achieve the best results. At ISMI, we combine these in our classroom training.

Master Instructors

When you want to train people, you want them to learn from professionals with real field expertise. Our instructors are continually working with leading integrators and companies worldwide. They regularly install the AEOS Enterprise Security Management system in real enterprise environments. They are getting daily, real-world experience in design and deployment: expertise they bring to the courses they develop and teach.

Superior Content

A strong curriculum provides depth to our learning solutions. Year in, year out, we train many participants whose feedback is integrated into our courses. This way, we make sure that our courses reflect precisely what businesses and individuals need to know. With this content, the International Security Management Institute empowers workers, helping them to master the knowledge and skills needed to face real-world challenges.

Peer Interaction

Participants clearly benefit from interaction with their instructors, but sharing experiences with peers is equally important. All of our learning formats allow for interaction with both instructors and fellow participants.

Live Labs

Live Labs are the key to mastering the use of AEOS equipment in real situations. In every classroom, ISMI teaches hands-on skills with cutting-edge equipment.

Three Levels of Certification

Basic

The first step in AEOS Security Management systems begins at the Basic level. Basic level training gives participants an overview of the AEOS product line and its capabilities. This level provides a first introduction to the implementation, use and selling points of AEOS solutions.

Expert

At this level the courses are more tailored to the individual's specific job role or business needs. More in-depth information is provided on each topic.

Master

Master is the highest level of AEOS certification. Less than 5% of AEOS certified experts become Masters. Could you be the next one to join this elite?

Additional Course Prerequisites

Aside from English proficiency, the requirements to enter a technical ISMI course include a basic knowledge of one of the following areas (depending on the course): databases, operating systems, RFID, TCP/IP, cabling, or another relevant area.

Please refer to the product sheets for specific information on each course.

Participants must prepare themselves for courses by studying the appropriate manuals. After completing the course with good results, the participant receives an official ISMI certificate. Participants can only enter a more advanced training level if they have successfully completed the previous level, and have gained sufficient practical experience. These criteria are assessed by the ISMI team.

Languages

All ISMI training materials (modules, exercises and questionnaires) are provided in English, so proficiency in English is required for participation. The instruction itself can be given in English, French, German and Dutch. For all other languages, please contact the nearest training location.
